RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 34 pages. Original publisher: Washington, D. C. : U. S. Environmental Protection Agency, 2003 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)77481529 Subject: Choice of transportation. Excerpt: . . . Travel and Environmental Implications of School Siting by main activity, one of which is student. The other classifies trips by main purpose, one of which is school trip. If all personal and travel data were reported correctly, identifying school trips would be a simple matter of selecting trips by students to or from school. Several factors complicated the identification of school trips: (1) Households did not always report trips by children. While the travel diary instructions called on participating households to report all trips, a surprising number simply disregarded childrens trips. We added phantom trips to the database where adult members of households made trips to or from school and three other conditions were met: the household had members under 16 years; the adult was accompanied on the trip by other people, and the number traveling together dropped on the next leg of the adults trip, implying a drop off at school (or increased following the school trip, implying a...

Reviews

This book is definitely not straightforward to get started on studying but extremely exciting to read. It is really simplistic but shocks in the 50 percent of the ebook. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.

This publication is amazing. It is definitely basic but shocks in the fifty percent of your publication. You wont feel monotony at anytime of your own time (that's what catalogues are for concerning if you question me).
